or between Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland, will no longer require the leave of an immigration officer to land or embark, as the case may be, in the United Kingdom.

Article 8 imposes restrictions on an alien landing in the United Kingdom if he comes from abroad via the Republic of Ireland and does not require the leave of an immigration officer to land in the United Kingdom.

An alien who is subject to conditions imposed on his landing in the United Kingdom will, by reason of Article 3 (2), remain subject to those conditions on returning to the United Kingdom after a visit to the Republic of Ireland as an alien so remains at present on returning to Great Britain after a visit to the Channel Islands or Isle of Man.

Article 11 contains transitional provisions, and the other provisions of the Order are consequential upon Articles 3 (1) and 5.
