CHAPTER clxxvii.

An Act to amend the Acts relating to Chelsea Bridge. A.D. 1875.

[2d August 1875.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Act of the twenty-first and twenty-second years of Her Majesty, chapter sixty-six, intituled "An Act to amend the Act of the ninth and tenth "years of Her present Majesty, chapter thirty-nine, and to abolish "foot passenger tolls on Chelsea Bridge after payment of the sum "of eighty thousand pounds and interest:" 21 & 22 Vict. c. 66.

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Exemption of foot passengers from toll on certain days.

1. There shall be repealed, without prejudice to anything done thereunder, so much of section two of the said Act as provides for the exemption of foot passengers from toll on Sundays, Easter Mondays, Whit Mondays, and Christmas Days, and in place thereof be it enacted, that on and after the day of the passing of this Act toll shall not be demanded or taken for or in respect of foot passengers passing over or on to the said bridge on the several days mentioned in the schedule to this Act.

Exemption from toll on 3d August 1874.

2. Whereas in anticipation of the provisions of this Act no tolls were taken for or in respect of foot passengers passing over or on to the said bridge on Monday the third day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, which was a Bank holiday:

It is hereby enacted that the said bridge shall be deemed to have been free from foot passenger tolls on the said third day of August one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.
