

ANNO QUINQUAGESIMO SEPTIMO

GEORGII III. REGIS.

CAP. LXX.

An Act to relieve Perſons impugning the Doctrine of the Holy Trinity from certain Penalties, in Ireland.

[7th July 1817.]

WHEREAS an Act was paſſed in the Nineteenth Year of the Reign of His preſent Majeſty, by the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled An Act for the further Relief of Proteſtant Diſſenting Miniſters and Schoolmaſters, and the Proviſions of ſaid Act have not been enacted or made Law in Ireland: And whereas it has been and may be reaſonably doubted, whether the Proviſions of an Act paſſed in the Fifty-third Year of the Reign of His preſent Majeſty by the Parliament of the United Kingdom, intituled An Act to relieve Perſons who impugn the Doctrine of the Holy Trinity from certain Penalties, do extend to or were intended to affect Ireland; and it is meet and proper that equal Freedom of Religious Worſhip ſhould be ſecured by Law to every Part of the United Kingdom: May it therefore pleaſe Your Majeſty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty, by and with the Advice and Conſent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this preſent Parliament aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, That ſuch of the Proviſions of an Act paſſed by the Parliament of Ireland, in the Sixth Year of His late Majeſty King George the Firſt, intituled An Act for exempting the Proteſtant Diſſenters of this Kingdom from certain Penalties to which they are now ſubject, as purport to affect by Penalties or Diſqualifications any Perſon who by his preaching or writing ſhall deny the Doctrine of the Bleſſed Trinity, be and the ſame are
