EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations replace the Incidental Expenses (Scotland) Regulations, 1947, which sanctioned the expenses incidental to the proper discharge of their duties which might be paid by education authorities. They extend the list of expenses which may be incurred as incidental expenditure, leaving the sums to be spent to the discretion of education authorities. The financial limits specified in the Regulations of 1947, on the incidental expenditure which education authorities might incur in promoting public interest in the educational service have been removed.
