EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note does not form part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations revoke the Keeping of Intoxicating Liquor Regulations 1952.

They relieve certain excise traders from making entry of buildings, rooms, cellars and other places, and fixed casks, vessels and utensils used for keeping intoxicating liquor, and of moveable casks used for keeping or delivering spirits.

They also remove the obligation upon dealers in, or retailers of, spirits to mark on the outside of casks or vessels containing spirits, the strength of which cannot be ascertained by Sikes's hydrometer, the quantity and strength of the spirits they contain.
