EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order.)

This order amends the Local Authorities Licensing and Regulation of Particular Activities (Transitional Provisions) (Scotland) Order 1983 which extended to 30th June 1984 the validity of certain existing licences and provided for the expiry on that date of other licences which would otherwise have continued in force for their specified duration.

For the areas of the particular authorities referred to in the order, this order substitutes later dates for 30th June 1984 as the expiry date for licences issued under legislative provisions which are to be replaced by the optional licensing provisions of the Civic Government (Scotland) Act 1982. In the case of Lochaber, the City of Glasgow, Wigtown and Cunninghame District Councils, the later date applies to the expiry of licences for any of the activities to which the optional licensing provisions of the Act apply. In the case of Monklands District Council, the later date applies to all these activities with the exception of taxis and private hire cars, for which 30th June 1984 remains the expiry date.
