EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Under the National Health Service (Scotland) (Superannuation) Regulations, 1950, which are the regulations at present in force under S. 66 (1) of the National Health Service (Scotland) Act, 1947, the remuneration of a dental practitioner for pension purposes is the sum of the payments made to him by Executive Councils in respect of his provision of general dental services.

Now that in terms of section 1 of the National Health Service Act, 1951, these practitioners will be entitled to obtain part of their remuneration for some of their services from their patients instead of from Executive Councils, it is necessary to ensure that that part of their remuneration shall also be reckonable for pension purposes. These regulations are designed to secure that result.
