EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations, by making an addition to the occupations set out in Part II of the First Schedule to the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations, 1948, extend insurance under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, against pneumoconiosis to persons employed in boiler scaling.

In addition, they contain transitional provisions relating to persons who have worked in that employment since 5th July, 1948 (when the Act came into force), and who have already died from the disease or are suffering from it on the date when these regulations come into operation. These provisions deal in particular with payment of benefit from that date. They also provide that persons for whom benefit is available under the Pneumoconiosis and Byssinosis Benefit Scheme, 1952, shall not be entitled to benefit under these Regulations.

3.—(1) Where a person, who has been employed on or at any time after the appointed day(a) in insurable employment in any of the occupations specified in the second column of the Schedule hereto, is as the result of the disease specified in the first column of that Schedule incapable of work or, as the case may be, suffering from a loss of faculty on the date on which these regulations come into operation, and the disease is due to the nature of that employment, the provisions of regulation 6 of the principal regulations (which relates to date of development) shall be applied subject to the modification that the said date on which these regulations come into operation shall be treated as the first day on which he was incapable of work or, as the case may be, as the day on which he first suffered from the relevant loss of faculty, and the date of development shall be determined accordingly.

(2) Where a person to whom the last foregoing paragraph applies is awarded disablement benefit in respect of the disease and claims an increase of that benefit under section 14 of the Act (which section relates to increase of disablement pension in cases of special hardship), then, if at any time after having been employed as aforesaid but before the date on which these regulations come into operation that person has abandoned any occupation as a result of the disease, the fact that he has abandoned that occupation shall be disregarded in determining his regular occupation for the purposes of the said section 14.

(3) Where at any time after the appointed day but before the date on which these regulations come into operation, the death of any person who has been employed as aforesaid has resulted from the disease, and the disease was due to the nature of that employment, that person shall be treated for the purposes of Part IV of the Act (which relates to extension of insurance to diseases) and of the principal regulations, as amended, as if these regulations had been in force at the date of death, subject only to the following modifications:—

(a) no benefit shall be payable in respect of the death of that person—

(i) by way of pension or allowance for any period before the said date on which these regulations come into operation;

(ii) by way of gratuity, on a claim made by or on behalf of any other person who has died before that date, or to the widow of the deceased if she has remarried before that date:

(b) in applying, in respect of the death of that person, the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to the Act (which limit benefit payable in respect of any death), any person who has died before the said date on which these regulations come into operation shall be disregarded.
