EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations amend the National Service (Miscellaneous) Regulations, 1948.

The 1948 Regulations permit legal representation in cases before the Umpire and Local and Appellate Tribunals for conscientious objectors but not in cases before Military Service (Hardship) Committees.

The present Regulations amend the 1948 Regulations by providing that legal representation shall also be permitted in cases before Military Service (Hardship) Committees.

Under the 1948 Regulations only witnesses or persons appearing to a Military Service (Hardship) Committee or the Umpire to be likely to be affected by the decision may be allowed to be present at the hearing of cases.

The present Regulations alter this provision. They require cases before those Committees and the Umpire to be heard in general in public but also provide that the chairman of a Committee or the Umpire can direct that any particular case shall be heard in private, if he considers that this is desirable for reasons of public security or if intimate personal or financial circumstances are likely to be disclosed.
