EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations consolidate with amendments the existing Police Regulations for men and women, other than those relating to discipline and promotion examinations, into a single code. The main amendments are in Regulation 5 (b) (which alters the age for appointment as a constable); Regulation 8 (which provides that a constable on probation whose services are dispensed with should be given one month's, instead of one week's, notice); Regulation 9 (which omits the requirement that an inspector is to be on probation for the first year in that rank); Regulation 14 (which provides for the fingerprinting of every member of a police force); Regulation 18 (which varies the calculation of time off, or payment in lieu, for work done on public holidays and weekly rest days); and Regulation 23 (2) (b) (which provides that all temporary promotion is to count for pay).
