POLICY NOTE

THE PROVISION OF EARLY LEARNING AND CHILDCARE (SPECIFIED CHILDREN) (SCOTLAND) AMENDMENT ORDER 2026

SSI 2026/329

The above instrument was made in exercise of the powers conferred by section 47(2)(c)(ii) of the Children and Young People (Scotland) Act 2014 ('the Act'). This instrument is subject to affirmative procedure.

Summary Box

The purpose of the instrument is to amend the Provision of Early Learning and Childcare (Specified Children) Order 2014 ('the 2014 Order') to protect eligibility for two-year-old children who qualify for access to funded early learning and childcare (ELC) due to their parents' receipt of certain qualifying benefits.

Policy Objectives

Entitlement for funded ELC for 2 year old children depends on a child being an 'eligible pre-school child', which includes their parent being in receipt of certain 'qualifying benefits', as set out in the 2014 Order. For some qualifying benefits, there is an additional requirement that any income the household receives must not exceed a certain level. This maximum income level is set out in the 2014 Order.

This amending instrument amends the maximum income level for those in receipt of Universal Credit from £850 per month to £885 per month, in line with the increase to the National Living Wage which came in to effect from 01 April 2026.

Background

A maximum income level was introduced to the 2014 Order for those on Universal Credit in 2017[1]. Since 2021, the maximum income level has been broadly equivalent to the amount a person would receive if they work 16 hours per week at the rate of the National Living Wage [2].

The UK Government confirmed on 26 November 2025 that there would be an increase to the National Living Wage. From 1 April 2026, the National Living Wage will increase from £12.21 to £12.71 per hour. The National Living Wage is the statutory minimum wage rate for those age 21 and over, not to be confused with the 'real living wage'.

Due to a compressed parliamentary timetable as a result of the Scottish Parliament election, there was a delay in laying this SSI. To ensure no families would be negatively impacted by the delay, Scottish Government worked with COSLA to ensure that local authorities would use their existing discretionary powers to apply the new maximum income level from 01 April 2026 on a temporary basis until the 2014 Order could be amended.

COSLA and local authorities have been supportive and co-operative and we are not aware of any children not accessing a place due to this approach.

We intend to continue to review the income thresholds in the 2014 Order in order to reflect planned changes to the National Living Wage. If there are changes to the National Living Wage in the 2026 UK Budget to come in to effect from April 2027, an additional SSI will be laid in early 2027.

UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (Incorporation) (Scotland) Act 2024 Compatibility

The Scottish Ministers have made the following statement regarding children's rights.

In accordance with section 23(2) of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (Incorporation) (Scotland) Act 2024, the Scottish Ministers certify that, in their view, the Provision of Early Learning and Childcare (Specified Children) (Scotland) Amendment Order 2025 is compatible with the UNCRC requirements as defined by section 1(2) of the Act.

EU Alignment Consideration

This instrument is not relevant to the Scottish Government's policy to maintain alignment with the EU

Consultation

As these amendments are being made in order to maintain rather than change eligibility, we have not consulted on the uprated maximum income level. The Convention of Scottish Local Authorities (COSLA) are aware of, and in agreement with this approach.

Impact Assessments

These amendments do not impact on children currently accessing funded ELC due to a parent's receipt of a qualifying benefit. Their eligibility is protected, even if a parent's circumstances change.

If we make no change to the maximum income level, it would mean access to funded ELC at age two would narrow for those who have not yet started funded ELC. The profile of people who would fall out of eligibility are those who qualify due to receipt of Universal Credit who are working 16 hours a week at the National Living Wage (those working fewer hours would not see their income exceed the current maximum income level). It is not possible to identify the exact number of people this would be, but modelling suggests the eligible population would decrease by around 300 two-year-olds.

The amendments here, and any future uprating in line with the National Living Wage, are necessary to maintain eligibility for funded ELC. A broadly similar population will be eligible after the amendments come in to force and we do not anticipate any reduction in the eligible population as a result of the draft amendments.

Our previous equality impact assessment on amendments to the 2014 Order has been reviewed and updated. This will be published separately.

We are of the view that the effect of these amendments is not discriminatory on the basis of age, disability, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation or gender reassignment. There is no impact on children's rights and wellbeing. We do not consider there to be any impacts on island communities, privacy or the environment.

Financial Effects
The maximum income levels proposed are based on modelling which protects the current level of entitlement to early learning and childcare for eligible two-year-olds for 2025/2026. We anticipate no material impact on local authorities' ability to fund this provision within the current financial settlement.

As we do not anticipate a change to the two-year-old eligible population as a result of these changes, we do not anticipate any material impact on ELC providers in the private and third sectors. We have not updated the Business and Regulatory Impact Assessment published for the 2021 Amending Order[3].

The Minister for Children, Young People and the Promise confirms that no new BRIA is necessary as the instrument has no financial effects on the Scottish Government, local government or on business.
