

CHAP. 23.

An Act for re-vesting in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the Rectory of Newelme alias Ewelme, in the county of Oxford. [16th June 1871.]

A.D. 1871.

WHEREAS King James the First, by letters patent, granted his advowson of the rectory of Newelme alias Ewelme, in the county of Oxford, for the benefit of the Regius Professor of Divinity in the University of Oxford, and by a subsequent Act of the tenth year of the reign of Queen Anne, chapter forty-five, intituled "An Act for confirming and rendring more effectual certain letters patents of King James the First, for annexing a canonry and several rectoryes to the Regius Professor of Divinity in the University of Oxford, and to the Regius Professor and Lady Margarett's Reader of Divinity in the University of Cambridge," such grant was further carried into effect, and the said rectory was annexed to the office of Regius Professor of Divinity in the said University:

10 Ann. c. 45. (in the Record edition), [c. 12 in the ordinary editions].

And whereas it is expedient to re-vest in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the said advowson:

Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1. After the passing of this Act the rectory of Newelme alias Ewelme, in the county of Oxford, shall cease to be annexed to the office of Regius Professor of Divinity in the University of Oxford, and the advowson of the said rectory shall re-vest in Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, who shall be entitled to present any person being a member of Convocation of the said University to the said rectory in the same manner in all respects as if the said

Rectory of Ewelme to cease to be annexed to office of Regius Professor of Divinity.

A.D. 1871. advowson had always continued vested in the Crown, and the said rectory had not been annexed to the said office.

Short title. 2. This Act may be cited as The Rectory of Ewelme Act, 1871.
