the parish of Saint Thomas, in the city of Dublin, various sums amounting to four hundred and twenty-four pounds seventeen shillings and sixpence, to be repaid, with interest at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, within forty years:

And whereas such sums were advanced for the purpose of the erection of buildings to be used as dwellings for the labouring classes, and were expended in such erection:

And whereas on account of the said loan there remained due in the month of November one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three a sum of four hundred and seventeen pounds seventeen shillings and sixpence in respect of principal, and twenty-two pounds four shillings and eightpence in respect of arrears of interest, and no sum has since been received:

And whereas the said mortgaged premises were held under a lease subject to the yearly rent of eighty-four pounds, and the lessor on such rent falling into arrear obtained in the month of August one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, judgment of ejectment for nonpayment of the said rent against the said Timothy Moore:

And whereas the value of the premises was such that it was not prudent for the said Commissioners to redeem on such ejectment by paying the rent in arrear, and therefore the security of the said premises was lost to the said Commissioners, and it is considered to be impracticable to otherwise recover the said debt from the said Timothy Moore: Be it therefore enacted as follows:

The Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland may remit all principal and interest due from the said Timothy Moore under the said mortgage of the twenty-third June one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, and the amount so remitted shall be deemed to be a free grant by Parliament.
