EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order amends the Renewables Obligation (Scotland) Order 2009 ("the 2009 Order").

The 2009 Order imposes an obligation (the "renewables obligation") on all electricity suppliers which supply electricity in Scotland to produce a certain number of Scottish renewables obligation certificates ("ROCs") in respect of electricity they supply to customers in Scotland during an "obligation period". Each obligation period runs from 1 April to 31 March.

The renewables obligation is administered by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ("Ofgem") which issues ROCs to accredited renewable electricity generators based on their output. These certificates are sold to electricity suppliers with or without the associated renewable electricity.

In lieu of each ROC, suppliers can also make a cash payment to Ofgem at a set price (the "buy-out price"). The buy-out price is indexed to inflation and has changed in line with the retail price index each year since the renewables obligation came into force. This Order provides for the buy-out price to increase (or decrease, as the case may be) in line with the consumer price index instead of the retail price index for all obligation periods from 1 April 2026 onwards.

The renewables obligation has a mechanism known as mutualisation which seeks to recover a shortfall of payments from suppliers if there is a payment default and the level of default is equal to or in excess of a threshold. There is a cap on the amount of mutualisation payments that can be made in respect of each obligation period (the "mutualisation cap"). As with the buy-out price, the mutualisation cap is indexed to inflation and has changed in line with the retail price index each year since the renewables obligation came into force. This Order provides for the mutualisation cap to increase (or decrease, as the case may be) in line with the consumer price index instead of the retail price index for all obligation periods from 1 April 2026 onwards.
