EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

The Special Constables (Pensions) Order, 1950, and the Special Constables (Pensions) Order, 1949, gave to special constables and their dependants certain pension benefits for which members of police forces and their dependants were eligible. The Police Pensions Regulations, 1953, provided that where a member of a police force, acting in the execution of his duty, was attacked in a manner which in the opinion of the police authority was intrinsically likely to cause death and died as a result of the attack, the amount of his widow's pension, together with certain payments under the National Insurance Acts, 1946, should be not less than half his pay as calculated for pension purposes. This Order makes similar provision in relation to the pension of the widow of a special constable, in Regulation 1 in the case of deaths on or after the 16th May, 1950, and in Regulation 3 in the case of deaths before that date.

Regulation 2 provides for an increase in the notional average pensionable pay of a special constable ceasing to hold that office after the thirteenth day of January, 1954, where an award calculated on that pay becomes payable after the coming into operation of this Order.
