EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Rules, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Rules amend the conditions under which teachers may pay additional contributions in order to count for the purposes of calculating superannuation allowances certain periods of employment before entry into teaching service. They allow a teacher who becomes employed in pensionable service in a university in Great Britain to continue to make periodical payments direct to the Secretary of State, and extend the period within which a teacher must apply for a direction that previous employment shall be counted as contributory service.
